Known for her bold and personal interpretations as well as her commitment to the promotion and pedagogy of the harp, Ann Yeung has established herself as one of the foremost harpists of her generation. Active as a performer, teacher, and author, she is Editor of the World Harp Congress Review, the official publication of the World Harp Congress. Winner of numerous international and national competitions including top prizes in the Lily Laskine International Harp Competition (France) and the Nippon Harp Competition (Japan), her musical career was launched when she became the only person to win First Prize in the two highest divisions of the American Harp Society's national competition at the age of seventeen (USA). Dedicated to the expansion of the harp's repertoire, she premiered her transcription of J.S. Bach's Goldberg Variations at Carnegie Hall as a winner of Artists International and has given numerous world premiere performances, most recently of interactive multi-media works for harp. Her students include national First Prize winners and the innovative ensemble, The HarpCore Four. She also has served as Second Vice-President of the American Harp Society (AHS) and Chair of the AHS Harp Literature Committee. She received her Doctor of Music and Artist Diploma from Indiana University where she studied with Susann McDonald. Currently, she is Associate Professor of Harp and Chair of the String Division at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign where she heads the harp program, is Principal Harp of the Sinfonia da Camera, and conducts an annual Summer Harp Class at UIUC (June 7-9, 2007).
